Red, White and Orange Movia Lunar 2007

by Ray Isle, Wine Editor

"Orange wines" – a current favorite of hipster sommeliers- are white wines that are kept at length on the grape skins as they are made. One result: their resistance to oxygen is increased, so they stay fresh longer when opened.

LUNAR

MOVIA

The most extreme of Slovenian winemaker Ales Kristancic's many extreme wines, this deep-orange-hued Ribolla Gialla is fermented and aged for seven months in barrels buried 30 feet underground. It's minerally and apple-inflected.
